

Your health. Our future.
The Campaign for Coastal Health

First National Bank

First National Bank has made a gift of $50,000 to the Pen Bay Waldo Healthcare Foundation in support of the 42,000-square-foot Health Center under construction at Pen Bay Medical Center.

First National Bank President and CEO Tony C. McKim.

To show its appreciation, the hospital has invited First National to name the pediatric therapy room in the new building. “Access to quality health care is important to us both as a bank and as residents of the communities we serve,” said First National Bank President and CEO, Tony C. McKim. “The new Health Center will be a great addition to the Pen Bay campus and we are pleased to support PBMC.”

The Health Center, to be ready to receive patients by the end of 2020, is designed to make it easier for physicians and other providers to collaborate and connect patients with the wellness, prevention and specialty services they need. Headquartered in Damariscotta, First National was established in 1864 and now has 16 branches from Wiscasset to Calais and one inland branch in Bangor.